

Hate Crime

Key Findings

Easy Read Version

What is Hate Crime?

Police Scotland describe a Hate Crime as crime motivated by malice or ill will towards someone because of their:

Race

Sexual orientation

Religion or faith

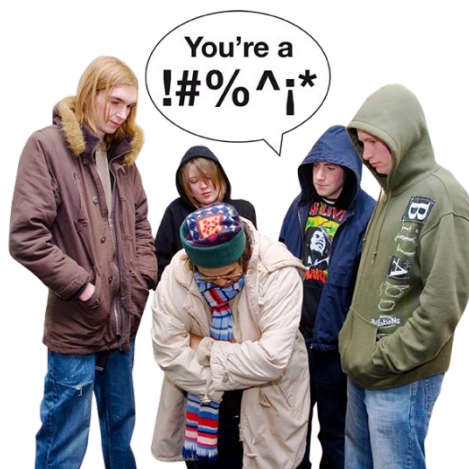

Disability

Transgender or gender identity

When a hate crime has happened to someone with a learning disability it is not often reported

Hate crimes target vulnerable members of our communities and this has a really bad effect on both victims and their families

In some cases victims or witnesses of hate crime do not feel comfortable reporting the matter to the police

Third Party Reporting Centres are places that are familiar to people, like libraries or housing associations

Police Scotland works with lots of Third Party Reporting Centres to help victims and witnesses report hate crimes

Staff within Third Party Reporting Centres should have been trained to help a victim or witness by reporting the hate crime to the police

This means that the victim or witness can remain anonymous

Aim

The Scottish Commission for Learning Disability (SCLD) worked with Third Party Reporting Centres in Scotland in March 2016

We wanted to know 4 things

1 What organisations actually consider themselves to be Third Party Reporting Centres?

2 If the centre had reported any hate crimes in the last year

3 Who have the Third Party Reporting Centres reported any hate crimes to?

4 Have Third Party Reporting Centres reported gender based violence as a hate crime?

3rd Party Reporting Centres Survey

Questions

1. What do you think about it?

☐ Good

☐ Bad

☒ Not sure

To get the information from organisations we used a survey

The majority of the Third Party Reporting Centres we asked still considered themselves to be a Third Party Reporting Centre

Almost all the Third Party Reporting Centres reported little or no activity in the last year

The majority of Third Party Reporting Centres said that staff and resources was not an issue for them

Some organisations told us they had received refresher training from the police

Most Third Party Reporting Centres said they would report any issues using Police Scotland's online reporting tool

A small number of Third Party Reporting

Centres said they would report through a named contact with the police

A small number of Third Party Reporting

Centres said they would either call 101 or go into a local police station

A small number of Third Party Reporting

Centres said they would report it internally

The majority of Third Party Reporting Centres did not answer whether Gender Based Violence was reported differently from a hate crime

Awareness and Role

The awareness of the role of a Third Party Reporting Centre was low in many of the responses

There was confusion about the role of a Third Party Reporting Centre

Many organisations were unable to say what their role was as a Third Party Reporting Centre

We found out that not many people know about third party reporting

We found out that in some Councils all of their libraries are listed as Third Party Reporting Centres

In some councils only some libraries are Third
Party Reporting
Centres

There are also some councils who do not have any libraries as Third
Party Reporting
Centres

We found out that some
Third Party Reporting Centres where staffed by only 1 person at a time

At some centres they could not provide a private room to talk to people about issues they wished to report

It was hard to find out if Council Social Work Services provided a Third Party Reporting Centre service

Staffing and Resources

Most organisations said they had the staff and resources to be a Third Party Reporting Centre

However there was not a lot of information to prove that

Some organisations displayed Police Scotland branding and that was why they said that they were a Third Party Reporting Centre

Some organisations also said they were unsure what a Third Party Reporting Centre was

Many public organisations require you to book their private rooms which would mean they would not be prepared for someone walking in

Only having 1 member of Staff at a time to help someone and report something is not good

What happens next?

We want to do research to see if we can work with Social Work Services and Carers to try to make sure more hate crimes are reported

We also want to make sure that organisations know what their role is as a Third Party Reporting Centre

There has to be a better way of knowing what organisations are Third Party Reporting Centres

Organisations who want to be Third Party Reporting Centres need to be able to have a private room for people to come in at any time to report a hate crime

We also want to make sure that everyone knows how to report a hate crime including primary school children

+1 +2 +3

Organisations that run a Third Party Reporting Centre should have more than 1 member of staff ready to support people who need to report a hate crime
