Guidance notes

Please note this nomination is for a person(s) with a learning disability

What is a learning disability?

A learning disability is significant and lifelong. It starts before adulthood and affects the person's development. This means that a person with a learning disability will likely need help to understand information, learn skills and have a fulfilling life. Some people with a learning disability will also have healthcare needs and require support to communicate.

About the award

Our communities are enriched by the innovation of people and their ideas, contributing to the success of local business. People engaged in entrepreneurship and social enterprise are widely celebrated; however, the work and success of people with a learning disability who are engaged in enterprise can be less well known or recognised.
