

Supporting Disabled Children, Young People and Their Families Framework

Improving Outcomes for Children and Young People in Scotland

Why is this important to you?

People are not disabled because of their identity but because of things in society like public transport schools or services

These things often make it difficult for people to take part

What is the Framework?

It's a guide that helps to make it easier for disabled children young people and their families to

- Understand Scottish Government policy
- Know what their rights are
- Learn what services they are entitled to

Why are we doing it?

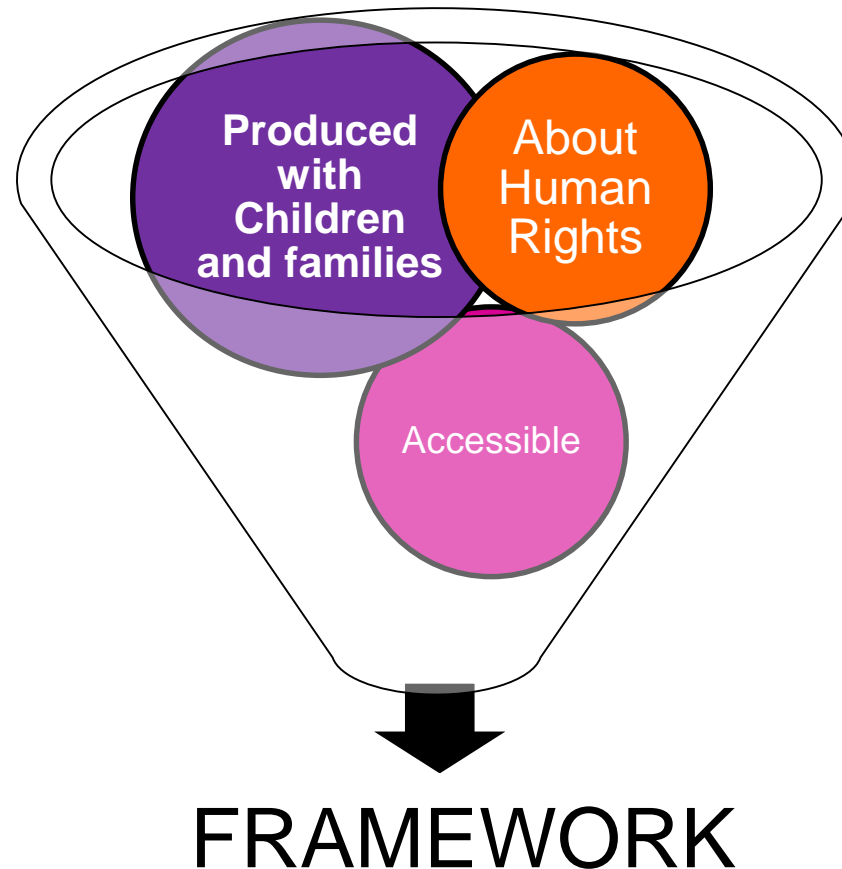

- 2016 Manifesto Commitments
- A Fairer Scotland for Disabled People
- Getting It Right for Every Child
- Human Rights Approach to Government
- 2018 Year of Young People

year of young people
bliadhna na h-òigridh
2018

How are we developing the Framework?

What is the aim of the framework?

The aim is to support disabled children and young people and their families from birth to adulthood

We will do this by

- Promoting rights information and signposting
- Making services accessible
- Making transitions better

What is the Framework trying to do?

- Disabled children and young people can take part in all aspects of daily and public life in Scotland
- Children young people and their parents will understand what their rights are and how to achieve them

What is the Framework trying to do?

- Support and services will be easier to get because people understand what kind of help there is
- Service providers will work with children, young people and parents to make sure their needs are identified quickly and they receive the right support at the right time

What is the Framework trying to do?

- Children young people and their families will be at the heart of decision making from the very start of the transitions process
- Support and services for children and young people at key points of transition will work better
- Young people and their families will understand transitions and services available to them

What are Transitions?

Moving from nursery to primary school, primary to high school

Moving from child to adult health services

Growing from a child to a young adult/adult

Moving from high school to college or university

What are we doing to make sure disabled children young people and their families are involved?
